² The reading Barār for this mint-name was adopted by numismatists in India. Cf. Proceedings of the Annual Meeting, Numismatic Society of India, 1913, p. 3, § 13, but some coins have quite recently come to light which suggest that the original reading بیراتہ was the correct one.

¹ This coin has سہ over مہر on the reverse; it does not look like part of the ornamentation.

² These two coins are probably of the year 45, but on No. 361 the unit figure looks like v. They approach the Elichpūr type very nearly—the letters after برہانپور may be part of بلدہ —which is an epithet of this mint on the coins of Shāh Jahān.

P. 422, note, last line. The statement that coins Nos. 4851 a, &c., are the successors of 4562 a, &c., of the Ilahābād mint I now find to be incorrect. What appears to have happened was this. When the East India Company took over charge of the Banāras mint in 1776 (1190 A. H.), for two years till 1192 they retained the regnal year 17 alone on the reverse, cf. I.M.C., vol. iii, Nos. (2375-2377). From 1193 begins the double regnal year series 17/21, &c. During the same period the Nawāb Āsafu-d-daula was coining in Lakhnau rupees of a similar type but with changing regnal years and the characteristic flag symbol on the reverse, cf. B.M.C., Nos. 1136-1137 of the eighteenth and nineteenth years, and the later coins, Nos. 4851 a, &c., in this Catalogue. During part of this period, at least 1190-1192 and in 1194, cf. coins Nos. 4562 a sqq., the Nawāb was also coining at Ilahābād. Coins Nos. 1135 and 1138-1141 in the B.M.C. of a third type with the royal umbrella symbol instead of the flag are difficult to explain.
